

The Voice of South Frankfort

Chairman's Comments

I'm grateful to have been chosen as the new Chair of the South Frankfort Neighborhood Association along with a very capable slate of officers. The opportunities and challenges within our neighborhood community are exciting. Those that preceded us in the leadership and membership of the SFNA have done much to advance the concerns expressed by our members. Our goal is to build on that legacy, to maintain the successes and to implement new strategies for a community voice.

Your South Frankfort Neighborhood Association is just that, YOUR neighborhood association. At risk of lecturing, the SFNA can only be an effective organization with your participation. Elsewhere in this newsletter is a listing of the committees that can use your involvement and support. I encourage you to talk with your neighbors and invite them to join this year. There are several public policy issues important to our community and the city as a whole that we are looking to address. To name a few, the Riverfront Development Project, property maintenance and code enforcement, sewers and storm water control, neighborhood security and better relationships with our school system. Our quarterly meeting on Thursday, October 21, is a forum of City Council candidates invited to begin the dialogue. Please, plan to attend and show your concern and support for our neighborhood.

My personal efforts this year are to focus on the recruitment of younger families in our community to begin the next generation of leadership. They are the ones now raising families and growing roots here that will continue to protect the integrity of very special neighborhood. I look forward to seeing you at the quarterly meeting.

Tony

Fishing Reels and Military Supplies Made Here

The Frankfort City Directory for 1908 shows last-of-the-great-Frankfort fishing reel manufacturers Clarence Gayle residing at this house which was then 422 Logan Street in South Frankfort. Frankfort street numbers changed around 1910.

The city of Frankfort had been famous since before the Civil War for the manufacturing of fishing reels. According to authors Steven K. Vernon and Frank M. Stewart in their book Fishing Reel Makers of Kentucky, two watchmakers Jonathan F. Meek and his brother Benjamin and their apprentice Benjamin Cave Milam, began a small reel-making activity as an adjunct to their jewelry and watch-making business on Main Street.

514 Logan Street played role in WWII and Korean War

Benjamin F. Meek Reel

The Meek-Milam collaboration provided reels for local anglers as well as fishermen throughout the world, among them Presidents William Howard Taft, Theodore Roosevelt and William McKinley. Milam lived at 308 Washington. The Meek brothers lived at 119 East Third Street.

In the 1930s Japanese manufacturers shipped thousands of cheap reels – copies of Gayle reels down to the George W. Gayle & Son label – to the United States and undercut Gayle's business. During World War II, the Gayle shop behind the house at 514 Logan fulfilled several government contracts for precisely machined weapon components – including parts for the first atomic bombs. During the Korean War, the company made dog-tags for US soldiers. Gayle & Sons Company remained in business until the 1980s.
